To whom it may concern,

After looking over the property at 9935 103rd St NW Annandale, with John Peterson, the road width was at 8 feet wide in places due to the rock retaining wall on the south side of the road. We then returned to the Annandale fire station and measured the width of the two engines. The engines came to be 9 feet wide and then if you add the mirrors it ends up being 10 feet wide. There is a Corinna township ordinance stating that all driveways shall have a minimum width of ten (10) feet with a pavement strength capable of supporting emergency and fire vehicles. There are a couple tree on the north side of the road that are on the next property to the east that if they were removed there would be enough clearance for the engines to get by. Also there is a service gate leading to the residence that would also have to be moved over, along with a tree that would have to be removed. John is going to have the property owners call Xcel energy to have a new power pole placed behind the existing one due to dry rot and that would also need to be moved a few feet back from the road so that there would be enough clearance for any emergency vehicles.
