Applicable Statutes/Ordinances:

Minnesota Statutes

462.357 (2011) OFFICIAL CONTROLS: ZONING ORDINANCE.

Subd. 6. Appeals and adjustments.

Appeals to the board of appeals and adjustments may be taken by any affected person upon compliance with any reasonable conditions imposed by the zoning ordinance. The board of appeals and adjustments has the following powers with respect to the zoning ordinance:

(1) To hear and decide appeals where it is alleged that there is an error in any order, requirement, decision, or determination made by an administrative officer in the enforcement of the zoning ordinance.

(2) To hear requests for variances from the requirements of the zoning ordinance including restrictions placed on nonconformities. Variances shall only be permitted when they are in harmony with the general purposes and intent of the ordinance and when the variances are consistent with the comprehensive plan. Variances may be granted when the applicant for the variance establishes that there are practical difficulties in complying with the zoning ordinance. "Practical difficulties," as used in connection with the granting of a variance, means that the property owner proposes to use the property in a reasonable manner not permitted by the zoning ordinance; the plight of the landowner is due to circumstances unique to the property not created by the landowner; and the variance, if granted, will not alter the essential character of the locality. Economic considerations alone do not constitute practical difficulties. Practical difficulties include, but are not limited to, inadequate access to direct sunlight for solar energy systems. Variances shall be granted for earth sheltered construction as defined in section 216C.06, subdivision 14, when in harmony with the ordinance. The board of appeals and adjustments or the governing body as the case may be, may not permit as a variance any use that is not allowed under the zoning ordinance for property in the zone where the affected person's land is located. The board or governing body as the case may be, may permit as a variance the temporary use of a one family dwelling as a two family dwelling. The board or governing body as the case may be may impose conditions in the granting of variances. A condition must be directly related to and must bear a rough proportionality to the impact created by the variance.

Subd. 1e. Nonconformities.

(a) Except as otherwise provided by law, any nonconformity, including the lawful use or occupation of land or premises existing at the time of the adoption of an additional control under this chapter, may be continued, including through repair, replacement, restoration, maintenance, or improvement, but not including expansion, unless:

(1) the nonconformity or occupancy is discontinued for a period of more than one year; or

(2) any nonconforming use is destroyed by fire or other peril to the extent of greater than 50 percent of its estimated market value, as indicated in the records of the county assessor at the time of damage, and no building permit has been applied for within 180 days of when the property is damaged. In this case, a municipality may impose reasonable conditions upon a zoning or building permit in order to mitigate any newly created impact on adjacent property or water body. When a nonconforming structure in the shoreland district with less than 50 percent of the required setback from the water is destroyed by fire or other peril to greater than 50 percent of its estimated market value, as indicated in the records of the county assessor at the time of damage, the structure setback may be increased if practicable and reasonable conditions are placed upon a zoning or building permit to mitigate created impacts on the adjacent property or water body.

(f) In evaluating all variances, zoning and building permit applications, or conditional use requests, the zoning authority shall require the property owner to address, when appropriate, storm water runoff management, reducing impervious surfaces, increasing setback, restoration of wetlands, vegetative buffers, sewage treatment and water supply capabilities, and other conservation-designed actions.

City of Glenwood Regulations

153.008 ADMINISTRATION AND ENFORCEMENT.

(F) Board of Adjustment.

(2) The Board of Adjustment, upon appeal, shall have the power to authorize variances from the requirements of this chapter, and to attach such conditions to the variance as it deems necessary to assure compliance with the purpose of this chapter. A variance may be permitted if all the following requirements are met.

(a) Literal enforcement of this chapter would result in undue hardship because of particular physical surroundings, shape or topographic conditions of the specific parcel as distinguished from a mere inconvenience, if the regulations were to be carried out.

(b) The unnecessary hardship results from circumstances unique to the parcel of land for which the variance is sought and applicable, generally, to other property with the same zoning classification.

(c) The hardship is caused by provisions of this chapter and is not the result of actions of persons presently or formerly having an interest in the parcel of land.

(d) The proposed variance observes the spirit and intent of this chapter, produces substantial justice and will not be detrimental to the public welfare or injurious to other land or improvements in the vicinity of the specific parcel of land.

(e) The proposed variance will not impair an adequate supply of light and air to adjacent property, or substantially increase congestion of the public streets, or increase the danger of or from fire, or otherwise endanger the public health, safety or welfare, and is consistent with the City Land Use Program.

Staff Comments:

-) In order to grant a variance, the City needs to find that a property owner has met the criteria established in the City Code and/or State Law. In making its decision, the City should state its “findings of fact” indicating why those criteria have been met or not met and as such, why the variance request should be approved or denied.
-) The primary criteria, in Staff’s opinion, that needs to be addressed in this case, are 1) whether a denial of the variance would cause the property owner to lose reasonable use of their property; and 2) whether the applicant created the situation that leads to the variance being requested. In other words, 1) if the proposed addition was not permitted because it does not meet the setback and lot coverage requirements, would the applicant lose reasonable use of their property and 2) did the applicant create the situation that makes it not possible to meet the requirements.

Findings of Fact: Staff would recommend the following findings of fact be considered when determining whether to recommend denial, approval, or approval with conditions:

1. Will the granting of the variance be in harmony with the general purposes and intent of the Zoning and/or Subdivision Ordinance?

The City’s subdivision ordinance does not apply to this application.

The general purposes and intent of the front yard setback is to allow for adequate space between buildings and the traveled road surface and right-of-way to protect property during installation or maintenance of utilities in the right of way and to prevent damage to property or persons from vehicles running off the road. The proposed house/garage addition would be located closer than is allowed by ordinance, but consistent with the existing setbacks of those buildings. The roadway receives medium traffic and vehicle speeds are not such that damage would be likely to occur if a vehicle went off the road.

The general purposes and intent of the limit on impervious coverage is to allow for infiltration of rainwater, prevent pollution of public waters, and prevent flooding or other problems related to surface water runoff. The applicant would be increasing the impervious surface from 36% to 37%.

2. Is the proposed use of the property reasonable?

The requested variance is reasonable in that it is not unusual for a residential property to have direct access from residence to garage, in most cases achieved by having an attached garage.

3. Is the plight of the landowner due to circumstances unique to the property not created by the landowner?

The need for the variance would appear to primarily be related to the relatively small size of the lot (approx. 7,500 sq ft – the minimum lot size required by current regulations would be 10,000 sq ft), which inhibits how many improvements can be made to the lot without running into the 30% limit on impervious coverage. Other lots in the area are generally larger and can have additional improvements without needing a variance from the 30% impervious limit.

4. Will the variance, if granted, alter the essential character of the locality?

The use of the property would remain residential and very similar in character to adjacent properties. However, it should be noted that the property is situated in a vicinity that has a relatively large proportion of commercial, industrial, and multi-family residential (apartments) development. Most of the single family residential that is similar to the property is to the north and east. The primary change to the subject property would be the addition, which will be located between the house and the garage.

5. Are economic considerations the only reason the applicant cannot meet the strict requirements of the ordinance?

Economic considerations do not appear to play a significant factor in the requested variance. The request is due primarily to the small lot size.

Findings of Fact: Staff would recommend the following findings of fact be considered when determining whether to recommend denial, approval, or approval with conditions:

1. Will the granting of the variance be in harmony with the general purposes and intent of the Zoning and/or Subdivision Ordinance?

The City’s subdivision ordinance does not apply to this application.

The general purposes and intent of the limit on impervious coverage is to allow for infiltration of rainwater, prevent pollution of public waters, and prevent flooding or other problems related to surface water runoff. The applicant would be increasing the impervious surface from 37 to 38%.

2. Is the proposed use of the property reasonable?

The requested variance is reasonable in that it is not unusual for a residential property to have additions made to the residence. In this instance, the addition will be replacing an existing open deck.

3. Is the plight of the landowner due to circumstances unique to the property not created by the landowner?

The need for the variance would appear to primarily be related to the small size of the lot (approx. 9,658 sq ft – the minimum lot size required by current regulations would be 8,000 sq ft), which inhibits how many improvements can be made to the lot without running into the 30% limit on impervious coverage.

4. Will the variance, if granted, alter the essential character of the locality?

The use of the property would remain residential and very similar in character to adjacent properties.

5. Are economic considerations the only reason the applicant cannot meet the strict requirements of the ordinance?

Economic considerations do not appear to play a significant factor in the requested variance. The request is due primarily to the small lot size.

Applicable Statutes/Ordinances:

Minnesota Statutes

462.357 OFFICIAL CONTROLS: ZONING ORDINANCE.

Subd. 6. Appeals and adjustments.

Appeals to the board of appeals and adjustments may be taken by any affected person upon compliance with any reasonable conditions imposed by the zoning ordinance. The board of appeals and adjustments has the following powers with respect to the zoning ordinance:

(1) To hear and decide appeals where it is alleged that there is an error in any order, requirement, decision, or determination made by an administrative officer in the enforcement of the zoning ordinance.

(2) To hear requests for variances from the requirements of the zoning ordinance including restrictions placed on nonconformities. Variances shall only be permitted when they are in harmony with the general purposes and intent of the ordinance and when the variances are consistent with the comprehensive plan. Variances may be granted when the applicant for the variance establishes that there are practical difficulties in complying with the zoning ordinance. "Practical difficulties," as used in connection with the granting of a variance, means that the property owner proposes to use the property in a reasonable manner not permitted by the zoning ordinance; the plight of the landowner is due to circumstances unique to the property not created by the landowner; and the variance, if granted, will not alter the essential character of the locality. Economic considerations alone do not constitute practical difficulties. Practical difficulties include, but are not limited to, inadequate access to direct sunlight for solar energy systems. Variances shall be granted for earth sheltered construction as defined in section 216C.06, subdivision 14, when in harmony with the ordinance. The board of appeals and adjustments or the governing body as the case may be, may not permit as a variance any use that is not allowed under the zoning ordinance for property in the zone where the affected person's land is located. The board or governing body as the case may be, may permit as a variance the temporary use of a one family dwelling as a two family dwelling. The board or governing body as the case may be may impose conditions in the granting of variances. A condition must be directly related to and must bear a rough proportionality to the impact created by the variance.

City of Glenwood Regulations

153.008 ADMINISTRATION AND ENFORCEMENT.

(F) Board of Adjustment.

(2) The Board of Adjustment, upon appeal, shall have the power to authorize variances from the requirements of this chapter, and to attach such conditions to the variance as it deems necessary to assure compliance with the purpose of this chapter. A variance may be permitted if all the following requirements are met.

- (a) Literal enforcement of this chapter would result in undue hardship because of particular physical surroundings, shape or topographic conditions of the specific parcel as distinguished from a mere inconvenience, if the regulations were to be carried out.
- (b) The unnecessary hardship results from circumstances unique to the parcel of land for which the variance is sought and applicable, generally, to other property with the same zoning classification.
- (c) The hardship is caused by provisions of this chapter and is not the result of actions of persons presently or formerly having an interest in the parcel of land.
- (d) The proposed variance observes the spirit and intent of this chapter, produces substantial justice and will not be detrimental to the public welfare or injurious to other land or improvements in the vicinity of the specific parcel of land.
- (e) The proposed variance will not impair an adequate supply of light and air to adjacent property, or substantially increase congestion of the public streets, or increase the danger of or from fire, or otherwise endanger the public health, safety or welfare, and is consistent with the City Land Use Program.

Staff Comments:

-) In order to grant a variance, the City needs to find that a property owner has met the criteria established in the City Code and/or State Law. In making its decision, the City should state its “findings of fact” indicating why those criteria have been met or not met and as such, why the variance request should be approved or denied.
-) The primary criteria, in Staff’s opinion, that needs to be addressed in this case, are 1) whether a denial of the variance would cause the property owner to lose reasonable use of their property; and 2) whether the applicant created the situation that leads to the variance being requested. In other words, 1) if the proposed addition was not permitted because it does not meet the setback and lot coverage requirements, would the applicant lose reasonable use of their property and 2) did the applicant create the situation that makes it not possible to meet the requirements.

Findings of Fact: Staff would recommend the following findings of fact be considered when determining whether to recommend denial, approval, or approval with conditions:

1. Will the granting of the variance be in harmony with the general purposes and intent of the Zoning and/or Subdivision Ordinance?

The City’s subdivision ordinance does not apply to this application.

The general purposes and intent of the front yard setback is to allow for adequate space between buildings and the traveled road surface and right-of-way to protect property during installation or maintenance of utilities in the right of way and to prevent damage to property or persons from vehicles running off the road. The proposed garage addition would be located closer than is allowed by ordinance, but consistent with other buildings that have been allowed in the neighborhood. The roadway receives medium traffic and vehicle speeds are not such that damage would be likely to occur if a vehicle went off the road.

2. Is the proposed use of the property reasonable?

The requested variance is reasonable in that it is not unusual for a residential property to have a detached garage, and many of the other properties in the area have one.

3. Is the plight of the landowner due to circumstances unique to the property not created by the landowner?

The need for the variance would appear to primarily be related to the topography of the property. The lot slopes to the south, and increases in steepness. Also, the Applicant has expressed a desire to retain the large mature oak trees on the property.

4. Will the variance, if granted, alter the essential character of the locality?

The use of the property would remain residential and very similar in character to adjacent properties.

5. Are economic considerations the only reason the applicant cannot meet the strict requirements of the ordinance?

Economic considerations do not appear to play a significant factor in the requested variance. The request is due primarily to topography and the desire to preserve mature vegetation.
